Prepare For Profits, Regardless Of The Economy

Experts Are Predicting Continued Corporate Wrongdoing! As A Result, The Stock Market Is No Longer A Safe Place– The Next Few Years May Even Make It A Less Rewarding One! Find Out What You Can Do About It!

"TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT!" , That's what! And here's why.

You could be one of an elite group of Bernie Schaeffer 's Option Advisor Newsletter subscribers who knows how to profit in a poor economy as easily as in a booming market!

Let me explain.

Investment guru's Jim Collins and Justin Fox, current SEC Chairman Chris Cox, and former SEC commissioner Joseph Grundfest all agree on one principle: Security fraud continues.

Now why would they paint us this fiercely negative picture about the very businesses we investors rely on to make us good money?

Well remember when you were caught doing something your parents (or spouse) didn't approve of? They asked you why you did it? You answered, "Because so-and-so did."

The fact is behavior is learned through imitation. It's especially effective when you can get away with it! Believe it or not, this is happening in big business.

Corporate thievery was a normal part of "doing business" in 1933 when Adolf Berle and Gardiner Means wrote their famous book, The Modern Corporation and Private Property.

It seems nothing has changed. Bean counters were "cooking the books" then as eagerly as they are today. And it was because of these two astute businessmen that Congress was motivated to create the SEC to regulate wrongdoing in the first place.

Has it worked? Sure, to a degree. However, you, the investor still gets caught in the cross fire between the law and the chaos.

But you already know the effect thievery had on the market. If you experienced any fall-out since 1999, WorldCom, Enron and AIG – we'll say no more. You know how badly it feels.

The truth is, when the stock market is booming, you feel better as an investor, however, the potential for mischief is greater. Why is that?

Let's face it, shareholders don't ask questions when they're making money. CEOs are happy ...
